

Who's in charge of your TV set?

Posted At : February 18, 2010 4:11 PM | Posted By : Michael Smith

Related Categories: Spirit, Language

I haven't watched TV news or listened to radio news for about 3 years now. I do sometime read headlines in the Washington Post when I am grocery shopping. But my main news source is what friends and coworkers are talking about. If it is big news then I hear about it. (I used to spend an hour a day reading the Post cover to cover plus CNN, PBS news. I guess I was a news junkie!)

So I found this article by Joe Vitale about new and a new positive only interesting.

Joe Vitale wrote:

>
As you probably know, I'm not a

>
fan of mainstream news.

>

>
Why?

>

>
It's generally 99% negative and fear based.

>
Not to mention, most of the news has very

>
little impact on your daily life, unless you

>
choose to engage and consume it, which

>
doesn't feel good at all.

>

>
Why invite it in to begin with?

>

>
This is not the "Outer Limits." You are in complete control of your television set.

>

>

>
With that said, I am a major fan of reading

>
and consuming positive and inspirational

>
books, news, press and headlines. For me

>
this is an inspiring process that helps foster

>
creativity and success.

>

>
This morning I read a batch of the latest

>
testimonials and case studies from my Miracles

>
Coaching students. Wow - talk about a jolt of inspirational adrenaline. My coaching students are taking the expression "Dare Something Worthy"

>

>

>
to new heights.

>

>
One particular case study really caught

>
my eye, as it seemed to truly embody

>
taking immediate action on an inspired idea.

>

>
Inspired largely by my book "The Attractor

>
Factor", one of my miracles coaching students

>
developed a "positive news" website.

>

>
Yep. This site has nothing but positive news

>
relating to business, politics, health, science,

>
entertainment and more. You can see it here --

>

>
<http://www.positivenewz.com>

>

>
Now that's a news site worth visiting.

They have an old saying in newspapers that "if it bleeds it leads". I take to mean that violence, conflict and fear tend to make it to the front page or leading stories. This is even more true of TV, which is a more emotional medium.

I do like some radio shows such as This American Life which goes into non=leading stories.

Perhaps if you contact the website with you idea for actionable news they would be interested.

If you don't already read it you might check out Yes magazine <http://www.yesmagazine.org/>

"Concerned with building a more just, sustainable, and compassionate future with articles about economic alternatives and peace options."

I also watch spiritual cinema circle DVDs as a way to find uplifting movies and documentaries. <http://www.spiritualcinemacircle.com/>

Does any one have any other positive magazines, website or shows they can recommend?